The Civil Society Forum comprises the participants selected from interested civil society organizations of the EU member states, Eastern Partner countries, and European and international CSOs (civil society organisations). The Forum participants elect 19 members of the Steering Committee:

- 6 national facilitators, one from each Eastern Partner country
- 5 working group coordinators – one for each working group from an Eastern Partner country
- 5 working group coordinators - one for each working group from the EU member states
- 3 coordinators from the EU member states - elected in a plenary of all Forum participants

2. Election procedures

(i) Criteria for eligibility of candidates

Participants from the Forum comprise:

- (a) representatives of CSOs from the Eastern Partner countries
- (b) representatives of CSOs from EU member states

Only participants with voting rights in the annual Forum are eligible as candidates for elections to the Steering Committee, or eligible to nominate candidates for elections to the Steering Committee. Candidacy requires nomination by another participant in the Forum with voting rights (as outlined below) for the corresponding position on the Steering Committee.

Candidacy for any position can be submitted to the Steering Committee in advance of the Forum (to be sent to steeringcommittee@eap-csf.eu by midnight, Central European Time, on 01 October 2013) or during the Forum. A final call for nominations will be issued by the chair of the relevant session (working group, national delegation, or Forum plenary session for election of EU Coordinators) immediately before the presentation of the candidates. All nominations should indicate the name of the candidate, the organization selected to participate in the CSF that he/she represents and its approval for his/her candidacy in case that he/she is not the statutory representative of the organisation. In addition, the name and organization of the nominating party should be indicated.

Each participant joins one of the five thematic working groups, and is eligible for nomination as a candidate for election as a working group coordinator (with the election of one participant from category (a) and one from category (b) in each working group). In addition, participants from category (a) are eligible for nomination as candidates for their respective country facilitator.

Representatives from category (b) of participants are eligible for nomination as EU coordinators.

Once elected for a position on the Steering Committee, the elected individual must withdraw from any candidacy for other positions on the Steering Committee. Lists of candidates for the partner countries' working group coordinators will be submitted in advance to all participants, so that the national delegations can be encouraged to make nominations to enable a balanced representation of the partner countries as working group coordinators.

Membership of the Steering Committee is limited to two consecutive one—year terms both on an individual and organizational basis (neither the individual nor her/his organization can serve on the Steering Committee for more than two consecutive terms). A Steering Committee member who has served two consecutive one - year terms on the Steering Committee will be eligible to be nominated as a candidate for election again one year after the completion of his/her second consecutive one - year term.

An organization whose representative has served two consecutive one - year terms on the Steering Committee will be eligible for its representative to be nominated as a candidate for election again one year after the completion of his/her second consecutive one - year term.

(ii) Voting rights

Each voting member holds one vote; no proxy votes are allowed. Voting members can vote in only one national delegation (the national delegation for which they are registered - this category applies only to participants from the partner countries), and in only one working group (the working group for which they are registered).

In the elections for the working group coordinators, all registered participants in the working group have voting rights in the election of both the working group coordinator from the partner countries, and of the working group coordinator from the EU member states.

In the elections for the three EU Coordinators, all Forum participants have voting rights, and the vote will be held in a plenary of all participants.

(iii) Voting procedures and electoral system

Prior to the elections, the CSF in plenary appoints 12 assessors to supervise elections for each of the above - mentioned posts. The assessors will be assigned to supervise the elections in each of the working groups (at least two per working group) and the elections of the national coordinators (two per national delegation), and three of them will supervise the election of EU coordinators. The assessors will ensure that the electoral procedures are observed, will arbitrate in the event of any disputes about interpretation of the procedures, and in the event of any dispute about the results of the elections. The assessors will also act as vote - counters.

The assessors will be observers of the CSF, should not be related to any candidates, nor serve as an employee of, or a Director of the Board or other governing organ of any of the organizations whose candidates have been nominated for election. If during the course of the Forum such a conflict of interest arises, the assessor should declare it immediately and withdraw from the position of assessor.

The following procedures will be applied to the elections for Steering Committee positions:

1. The election procedure will be supervised by the appointed assessors.
2. Each candidate will have the chance to present her/himself to the participants who will elect her/him.
3. The names of the candidates will be written on the screen (or flip chart) in alphabetic order of surname (using the Latin alphabet). Each name will be assigned a number (starting from 1 for the first name in alphabetical order).
4. The assessors will establish if there is a quorum present (where a quorum will be two - thirds of the participants registered for the corresponding session (working group, national delegation, or plenary session of all participants)
5. The voting will be by a secret ballot on a ballot paper distributed by the assessors to each voting participant in the appropriate working group, national delegation, or to the plenary forum for the election of EU coordinators.
6. The participant will write the number of the chosen candidate on the ballot paper and hand it to the assessors.
7. In a secret ballot, each voter can mark the ballot paper with the number corresponding to the name of their chosen candidate (in the case of the 3 EU coordinators, participants should mark the ballot paper with up to and including three numbers corresponding to the names of their chosen candidates. If more than the number of candidates corresponding to the number of vacant positions are selected, the ballot paper is spoilt.
8. After each ballot, the assessors will count the votes, will announce the number of valid ballots cast, confirm if a quorum has been reached, and announce the number of votes cast for each candidate.
9. For the election to be valid, ballot papers must be completed by at least the number of voting members that constitutes a quorum, as defined in (4) above.
10. Those candidates with the most votes are duly elected until the number of vacant positions has been filled.
11. In the event of a tie between two or more candidates for the final vacant position, a new ballot will be issued for votes to be cast for those candidates. When the votes are counted, those candidates with the most votes are duly elected until the number of vacant positions has been filled.

12. In the event of a tie again, a new ballot paper will be issued, and votes will be cast for those candidates who tied. The process will be repeated until the vacant position has been filled.

13. In the event that the ballots do not result in the election of candidates to fill all the vacant positions, there will be a call for new nominations to fill the remaining positions. The ballot for the remaining positions will then be run according to the same procedures as in the first ballot as set out above.
